TITANIC

THE FALL OF ISRAEL

Jeremiah was called

He became the Lord's mouth—

a voice shaped by fire, speaking to a people who had forgotten His name.

The Lord loved His people like a craftsman who built a ship for his bride each sail woven with mercy.

He named it Israel,

and He set to sail beneath a covenant sky.

but Rose loved the glitter of other pirates.

she betrayed Jack and kissed other men beneath the lanterns.

forgetting the hands that built her home.

Jack was filled with sorrow

he watched as Rose traded eternity for applause

the passengers danced and sang with idols, laughing while the hull cracked beneath their feet.

Then Jack saw the iceberg of judgment rising from the open sea

a mountain of cold truth

“Turn back,” he pleaded,

“Let the Captain take the helm again.”

but Rose refused

they bound the prophet

and threw him below deck.

Jack was imprisoned and he said —

“Listen to me!
Do you not know what is coming?’

But Rose and her lovers laughed

and the Titanic sank

The ship met the abyss, and heaven wept

over the wreckage of the mighty ship.
